Black Communities Are Leveraging the Power of Cutting-Edge Technologies

DENVER (Wednesday, June 28, 2023) -- Black Wall Street USA Informational Technological Council will be reaching out to Directors and their Administrators in the coming weeks to understand the technology needs of each district and implement software and training as needed. The IT Council will address the most pressing technological challenges faced by each district while simultaneously revolutionizing traditional practices. By leveraging the power of cutting-edge technologies, strategic collaborations, and a deep understanding of each district's needs, the IT Council aims to find and implement software solutions and training that benefit each district and the businesses they serve.

The newly formed IT Council is set to become the technology powerhouse within Black Wall Street USA, dedicated to ensuring direct communication and IT Consultation to Black and Brown businesses. The council is tasked with utilizing technology and fostering strategic partnerships to continue to push the mission and vision for the next 300 years. Led by visionary leadership and a team of highly skilled professionals, the IT Council will play a pivotal role in shaping the future of Black Wall Street USA by pushing the boundaries of what is possible.

The IT Council firmly believes that innovation thrives in an open and collaborative environment. In light of this, the IT Council is actively seeking Black Wall Street USA members who feel they are called to serve on this committee, to apply.

The launch of the IT Council and ITC Initiative marks a significant milestone in Black Wall Street USA's journey as a global leader in technology. By investing in cutting-edge technology, fostering collaborations, and embracing a future-oriented mindset, Black Wall Street USA reaffirms its position as a trailblazer in establishing, developing, and maintaining Black Wall Street Districts around the globe.
